DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by Dockery 3695681.

Dockery discloses a windshield that is photosensitive with means to adjust the sensitivity of the window to the light to adjust the opacity of the windshield. Please note that the windshields can be used in any desired elements such as trains, buildings, etc. The portion of the windshield that is photosensitive is surrounded by an area of the windshield that is not includes elements 18, 20, 22, etc. See figures. Please note that a portion of the window has a photosensitive area and some portions do not. The control module (see figure 6) has controls for controlling the photosensitive circuit 106, the shade opacity 116, and light sensitivity 110.

Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wolf et al in view of Dockery.

Wolf et al teaches glass which can be used in windshields for cars/aircrafts that has means to adjust opacity of the glass. Wolf et al is silent on the means to automatically adjust the opacity of the glass with changes in the light intensity and various dials to adjust the light sensitivity or response rate of the glass. However, Dockery teaches that means to adjust the opacity of the windshield with changes in the light intensity and various dials to adjust the light sensitivity or response rate of the glass are well known in the art.

It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to have used means to adjust the opacity of the windshield with changes in the light intensity and various dials to adjust the light sensitivity or response rate of the glass in Wolf et al's system as taught by Dockery to allow the system to be operated automatically.

Please note that it is obvious to one skilled in the art to have used the glass in any environment including lighthouses or boat, etc. to allow the control of light to enter a building/vehicle.
